Thank you for being a 2014 WFRN Member

Dear WFRN Member,

Thank you for supporting the Work and Family Researchers Network with your 2014 membership. Your 2014 membership is crucial to maintaining the vibrancy of the WFRN by giving voice to multiple stakeholders and advancing work and family scholarship and advocacy.

In case you have missed the announcements, the next WFRN conference takes place on June 19-21, 2014 at the Millennium Broadway Hotel in New York City. The theme for the conference is Changing Work and Family Relationships in a Global Economy, and the preliminary conference program is now available. It will be a wonderful opportunity to share your research, learn about cutting edge work and family research, and connect with others in the field. The 2014 program features numerous opportunities to network with others, including a newcomers’ reception, a career Q&A and networking session, and an idea incubator session. The Membership committee will also be hosting networking dinners, and we hope you will join us. Our 2012 meeting was an unqualified success, and we expect our June 2014 meeting will be equally exciting.

In the meantime, we trust that you are enjoying the benefits of membership, including access to the WFRN online resources, weekly News and Events, and monthly Work and Family Common updates.

We encourage you to get involved in the WFRN. With multiple opportunities to exchange ideas, connect with other WFRN members, or participate in the decision-making of the organization, there's something for everyone. Here are some of the ways you can participate:

- Posting news to the WFRN News Feed
- Submitting permissible versions of your scholarly work to the WFRN repository, the Work and Family Commons
- Posting events to our calendar, or
- Joining a WFRN committee
Thanks again for being a part of the WFRN. If you have any suggestions on how the Membership Committee can better serve its members, please contact the committee chair, Krista Lynn Minnotte (krista.minnotte@und.edu).

Sincerely,

The WFRN Membership Committee
